Research Support

Plagiarism Checking Service

Presenting the original ideas, expression and work of someone else with no or insignificant change is termed as plagiarism and it is more offensive when no credit or attribution is given. Plagiarized research work is considered to be an egregious form of plagiarism and the consequences of the same may ruin one's reputation, stature and cause legal problems. Also, with multiple copies of the same researched work/study makes the value of the work very insignificant. Recently, UGC has also issued guidelines for universities to curb plagiarism practices.

To help JECRC research community curb plagiarism, LRC now offers Plagiarism Checking Service using Urkund Software.

To check the plagiarism and have the similarity report generated, please email us at: library@jecrc.ac.in, including soft copy of the document (assignment, article manuscript, thesis/dissertation, etc.) in PDF or DOCX file format.

Our Plagiarism checking team will analyze your BU work-related articles/assignments/manuscript using Urkund and send requester the report.

The service is free for BU fraternity and confidential. Requestors must be identified as the first, last, or corresponding author of the unpublished article/assignment/manuscript.

The users who have credentials to access Urkund may directly access by visiting https://www.urkund.com/

Citing sources: When quoting, paraphrasing, and summarizing, you need to consistently follow the rules of a particular citation style. There are many different styles, so check with your teacher if you are not sure which style to use for a particular assignment.
